

Introducing
Royal Society
Read & Publish

THE
ROYAL SOCIETY
PUBLISHING

Straightforward, stress-free open access publishing with Royal Society Read & Publish agreements

As a scientist you probably just want to concentrate on the science; to submit your paper and get it published without worrying about the administrative burden of fees and Article Processing Charges (APCs). If you are from an institution signed up to a Royal Society Read & Publish agreement, you can now do just that.

What is Read & Publish?

A Read & Publish agreement is a new way for librarians to purchase both content and open access publishing with one simple yearly fee. Researchers from signed-up institutions no longer have to worry about dealing with the financial aspects of publishing. When your paper is accepted for publication by any of our journals, all open access fees are automatically covered by your institution, with no administrative burden on the author.

Eligibility

- Working with a team of researchers? No problem. Only the corresponding author needs to belong to an institution with a Read & Publish agreement.
- Articles must have been first submitted within a year that your institution's agreement covers.
- Ensure that all authors' institutions are correct with the correct Ringgold ID within our online submission system so that agreements are automatically applied.
- Just select the 'Open Access' option and we will do the rest.

Why choose us?

Between them, our journals cover the whole of science, including the history of science, with a range of options of article types and themed issues. Our peer review is rigorous and constructive, our times are fast, and our publishing policies meet the guidelines set down by all major funders. When your paper is published, we will do our best to ensure maximum visibility and impact for your work.

Find out more about our portfolio of journals and the options we offer at royalsociety.org/journals/authors

We look forward to receiving your paper.

EXPLORE THE AUTHOR JOURNEY

- 1 Visit the website of your chosen journal and click on submit in the top menu. Log-in to your account in ScholarOne if you are an existing user or create an account if you are new to the system.
- 2 Upload your manuscript, related files and complete the requested fields.
- 3 Ensure that the author from the eligible institution is assigned as the 'corresponding author' in ScholarOne Manuscripts and their institution's name selected from the search list. You can check if you are eligible by browsing our list of signed-up institutions.
- 4 Either during the submission process or at the revision stage you will be asked to select or confirm the open access option.
- 5 Await our email detailing outcome, reviewer feedback and next steps where relevant.
- 6 After final acceptance, all open access costs will be automatically handled by your institution. We have partnered with CCC Rightslink to manage this process.
- 7 Proofs are sent from our Production Team and our Press Team may also get in touch.

If you are from an institution not covered by a Royal Society Read & Publish agreement, your librarian can find out more at royalsociety.org/read-and-publish